St. Conti Communications to Help Grow
Forestry Modeling Software Publicity in New Industries

...Remsoft, Inc. Hires Agency for Public Relations Support

Mission Viejo, Calif. – January 15, 2008 – St. Conti Communications today announces it has agreed to provide public relations support for Remsoft, Inc. of Fredericton, New Brunswick. Work began in July 2007 to provide writing support for application stories and feature articles on behalf of the forestry industry’s de facto standard for predictive modeling. With Remsoft’s growth into new industry sectors, St. Conti has agreed to assist in additional activities through 2008, including research, writing, news announcements and media relations support.

“One of the things I like best about working with Donna St. Jean Conti is how much our clients like to work with her. She is always prepared and professional. She takes very little of their valuable time to write brilliant case studies about their uses of our sophisticated product,” said Sandi MacKinnon, director of marketing for Remsoft, Inc. “We expect her team will garner excellent media coverage for Remsoft as we continue to expand into new industry sectors in the United States and worldwide, lead in part by our new co-CEO, Steve Palmer, and on the heels of Remsoft’s award-winning product implementation for the New Brunswick Department of Transportation.”

About Remsoft

Remsoft has built its success by developing innovative and creative solutions with an overriding commitment to quality and unsurpassed service to its clients. Established in 1992, Remsoft software is now considered the management standard in the forestry industry with more than 250 licenses managing over 300-million acres of forestland on five continents.

Remsoft software applications are now used in diverse industry sectors. Flexible and PC based, the Remsoft System enables analysts to build their own models to meet specific industry needs. The Remsoft system is used for managing carbon sequestration, animal habitat, biodiversity, soil and water quality, infrastructure, allocation optimization, aesthetic & recreation valuation, forestland certification and more.
